Michael Gogan is a Business Development Specialist who partners with contractors and distributors to better document their job sites by getting all their pictures and notes into one place.

After spending nearly a decade teaching middle and high school social studies, Michael knows the ins and outs of education as well as how to get people to listen. It's not all about the information, but rather how well you connect with the living, breathing people you're trying to help and being able communicate your understanding to them.

Since trading his classroom for the job site, Michael has noted that the teaching is no different, just the students that are being taught. He has presented at the Roofing Contractors Association of Texas, Florida Roofing Contractors Association, Chicago's Rise Conference, and Win The Storm in Las Vegas.

In addition to his extensive education experience, Michael is a football and basketball coach. Michael holds a BA in education from the University of Nebraska at Kearney.
